Tianna N. Gammage

Board Member

Tianna N. Gammage, born and raised in Los Angeles, discovered her passion for criminal justice at the age of 12 after witnessing her father's struggles with incarceration and unmet needs for grief counseling and drug rehabilitation. Her early experiences, combined with the influence of her mother, a daycare owner, and her grandmother, a special education teacher, fostered a deep empathy and dedication to helping children, especially those who are less fortunate or developmentally disabled. Over the past decade, Tianna has worked with at-risk youth and young adults, earning recognition for her personalized approach to care that meets each child where they are. She is set to graduate with a Bachelor's degree in Psychology with a concentration in Criminal Justice and plans to pursue a Master's in Social Work. Licensed to operate group homes in California, Tianna aims to establish non-profit homes focused on supporting at-risk juveniles and transitional aged youth. She lives by the mantra: "Why dwell on the problem when we can brainstorm a solution."
