San Diego Man Pleads No Contest to Mayhem for Rose Bowl Concert Fight

A San Diego man pleaded no contest today to one count of mayhem for a confrontation at the Jay Z and Beyoncé concert at the Rose Bowl in Pasadena last summer, the Los Angeles County District Attorney's Office announced.

Deputy District Attorney Louis Parise said Roberto Alcaraz Garnica, 25, was immediately sentenced to three years formal probation, 30 days community service, 52 weeks of anger management and 40 days of county jail in case GA094155.

A restitution hearing is scheduled on April 24 in Department H of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, Pasadena Branch.

On Aug. 2, 2014, Garnica pushed a woman at the concert and was then confronted by her husband, the prosecutor said. A fight ensued and Garnica punched the husband and bit the tip of his left index finger off completely, the prosecutor added.

The case was investigated by the Pasadena Police Department.
