Three Found Guilty in Lancaster Street Brawl Murder

Three men were found guilty today for their involvement in the shooting death of a man in Lancaster, the Los Angeles County District Attorney's Office announced.

Deputy District Attorney Jon Hatami said Terrell Henderson, 22, Randy "Bam" Sullivan, 36, and Joshua Lockett, 21, were all found guilty of second degree murder.

Jurors deliberated for 12 hours before handing down the guilty verdicts in case MA058054. Los Angeles County Superior Court Judge Daviann Mitchell of the Antelope Valley Branch presided over the 21-day trial.

The defendants are due back for sentencing on May 9 in Department A19. Henderson faces 35 years to life in state prison. Sullivan and Lockett face 17-years-to-life and 15-years-to-life prison sentences, respectively.

On the morning of Nov. 29, 2012, the victim Brandon Houston and his live-in girlfriend got into a verbal argument. She called her sister for a ride out of the residence but her sister instead sent Henderson, Sullivan and Lockett to pick her up. When they arrived an argument broke out between the three defendants and Houston. The three defendants left but promised they would return, according to court testimony.

Sometime later, during the noon hour, the three defendants returned with two other men. A street brawl involving around a dozen people, including the defendants, ensued. During the fight, one of the men who arrived with the three defendants walked through the crowd, went directly to Houston and shot him 12 times, killing him, according to the prosecutor.

The shooter and the other man who were brought to the scene of the shooting by the defendants are still at large, Hatami added.

The case is being investigated by the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department, Homicide Division.
