Riverside County Man Convicted of Raping 12-Year-Old Girl

A 35-year-old man was convicted today of breaking into a Claremont home and raping a 12-year-old girl, the Los Angeles County District Attorney's Office announced.

Jurors deliberated for less than a day before finding Joseph Davall of Yucca Valley guilty of seven felony counts: two counts of aggravated sexual assault of a child, and one count each of forcible rape; sexual penetration by foreign object; assault to commit a felony during the commission of a first-degree burglary; first-degree burglary, person present; and making criminal threats in case KA105537.

Davall is scheduled to be sentenced on May 13 at the Los Angeles County Superior Court, Pomona Branch in Department H. The defendant is expected to be sentenced to life in state prison without the possibility of parole.

Deputy District Attorney Babette Huley, who prosecuted the case, said on March 21, 2014, Davall broke into a Claremont home and sexually assaulted the girl, who was in bed asleep. The victim continuously fought the defendant during the attack.

After the assault, Davall left the home with the girl's phone and threatened that he would kill her if she said anything about the assault, the prosecutor said.

It wasn't until the victim was out of her home and in a car with her father that she told him about the assault. He then took her to police so she could report the attack to police.

Authorities began an investigation into the incident and were able to link Davall to the rape through DNA.

The case was investigated by the Claremont Police Department.
