Man Found Guilty of Domestic Violence Murder in Burbank

A Hesperia man has been found guilty of stabbing his girlfriend to death inside a Burbank home in 2015, the Los Angeles County District Attorney's Office announced.

Deputy District Attorney Fernanda Barreto said Timothy Aguilar Andrade, 32, was found guilty yesterday of one count of first-degree murder with a knife-use allegation in case GA096966.

Andrade is scheduled to be sentenced on June 6 in Department G of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, Pasadena Branch. The defendant faces 26 years to life in state prison.

On Aug. 23, 2015, Andrade killed Brandi Carrasco, 35, by stabbing her in the neck inside a bedroom of a house located in the 1900 block of Richard Street where they were both staying, prosecutors said.

The case was investigated by the Burbank Police Department.
