Man Convicted of Killing Woman at Santa Fe Springs Swap Meet

A 23-year-old man was convicted today of killing a woman over a parking spot last year, the Los Angeles County District Attorney's Office announced.

The jury deliberated for a day and a half before finding Reggie Cervantes guilty of one felony count of voluntary manslaughter in case VA137338.

Cervantes is scheduled to be sentenced Sept. 30 in Department G of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, Norwalk Branch. The defendant faces a possible maximum sentence of 23 years in state prison.

Deputy District Attorney Andrea Mader, who prosecuted the case, said on Oct. 17, 2014, the victim, Elizabeth Yanez, drove to a Santa Fe Springs swap meet with her two adult children.

As the family was looking for a parking spot, Yanez reportedly got into an argument with Cervantes, who was in a separate vehicle.

At some point, Cervantes exited his car, walked over to Yanez and stabbed her.

After the assault, Cervantes fled the scene. Authorities were called and Yanez was taken to a hospital, where she later died of other causes.

A day after the stabbing, police located Cervantes and he was arrested in connection with the incident.

The case was investigated by the Whittier Police Department.
