A man was sentenced to 19 years and eight months in state prison today for breaking into homes in South Pasadena, as well as exposing himself, the Los Angeles County District Attorney's Office announced.

He also admitted a 2014 conviction of first-degree burglary, person present.

Brownlee was immediately sentenced by Los Angeles County Superior Court Judge Michael Villalobos.

On June 29, 2016, the defendant burglarized three residences, according to court testimony. In a separate incident, he exposed himself to a mother and her son near the intersection of Fair Oaks Avenue and Rollin Street.

He was stopped by police and arrested later that day.
