Ex-Probation Officer Pleads Guilty to Assaulting Teenage Girls at Youth Camp

A former Los Angeles County probation officer was sentenced today after pleading guilty to inappropriately touching two girls at a youth camp, the Los Angeles County District Attorney's Office announced.

Oscar David Calderon Jr., 33, entered his plea to two felony counts of assault under the color of authority. He was sentenced to 364 days in county jail and placed on formal probation for five years. Under the terms of the plea agreement, the defendant also was ordered to stay away from all victims while he is on probation.

Deputy District Attorney Ann Marie Wise of the Justice System Integrity Division prosecuted the case.

Calderon, a deputy probation officer for about nine years who has since resigned, worked at Camp Scudder in Santa Clarita beginning in 2014. He made sexual overtures to some of the teenage girls at the camp and inappropriately touched two of them.

Case BA453651 was investigated by the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department.
