Glendora Man Sentenced to Prison for Child Pornography

A 49-year-old man convicted of using a library computer to view images of seminude young girls was sentenced today to 13 years and four months in state prison, the Los Angeles County District Attorney's Office announced.

Kirk Brian Eggleston of Glendora was found guilty by a jury on Oct. 20 of two felony counts: possession of child pornography after a prior conviction and attempted child pornography after a prior conviction in case KA106649.

Additionally, the defendant admitted allegations that he was previously convicted of lewd and lascivious acts with child under 14 in 2003, child molestation in 2004 and indecent exposure in 2006.

At today's sentencing, Los Angeles County Superior Court Judge Juan Carlos Dominguez also ordered Eggleston to register as a sex offender for life.

Deputy District Attorney Lauren Guber, who prosecuted the case, said on Feb. 9, 2014, Eggleston went to the Glendora Public Library, sat down at a computer and began to view images of young girls in underwear and bathing suits.

Library staff noticed the defendant looking at images of seminude young girls and called police, the prosecutor said. Authorities arrived and also viewed Eggleston looking at the inappropriate pictures.

Police officers testified during trial they found search terms used to find child pornography images when Eggleston was using the library computer. They also discovered images that were consistent with the terms.

Additionally, police inspected the defendant's home computer and found child pornography search terms, but no pictures, the prosecutor said.

The case was investigated by the Glendora Police Department.
